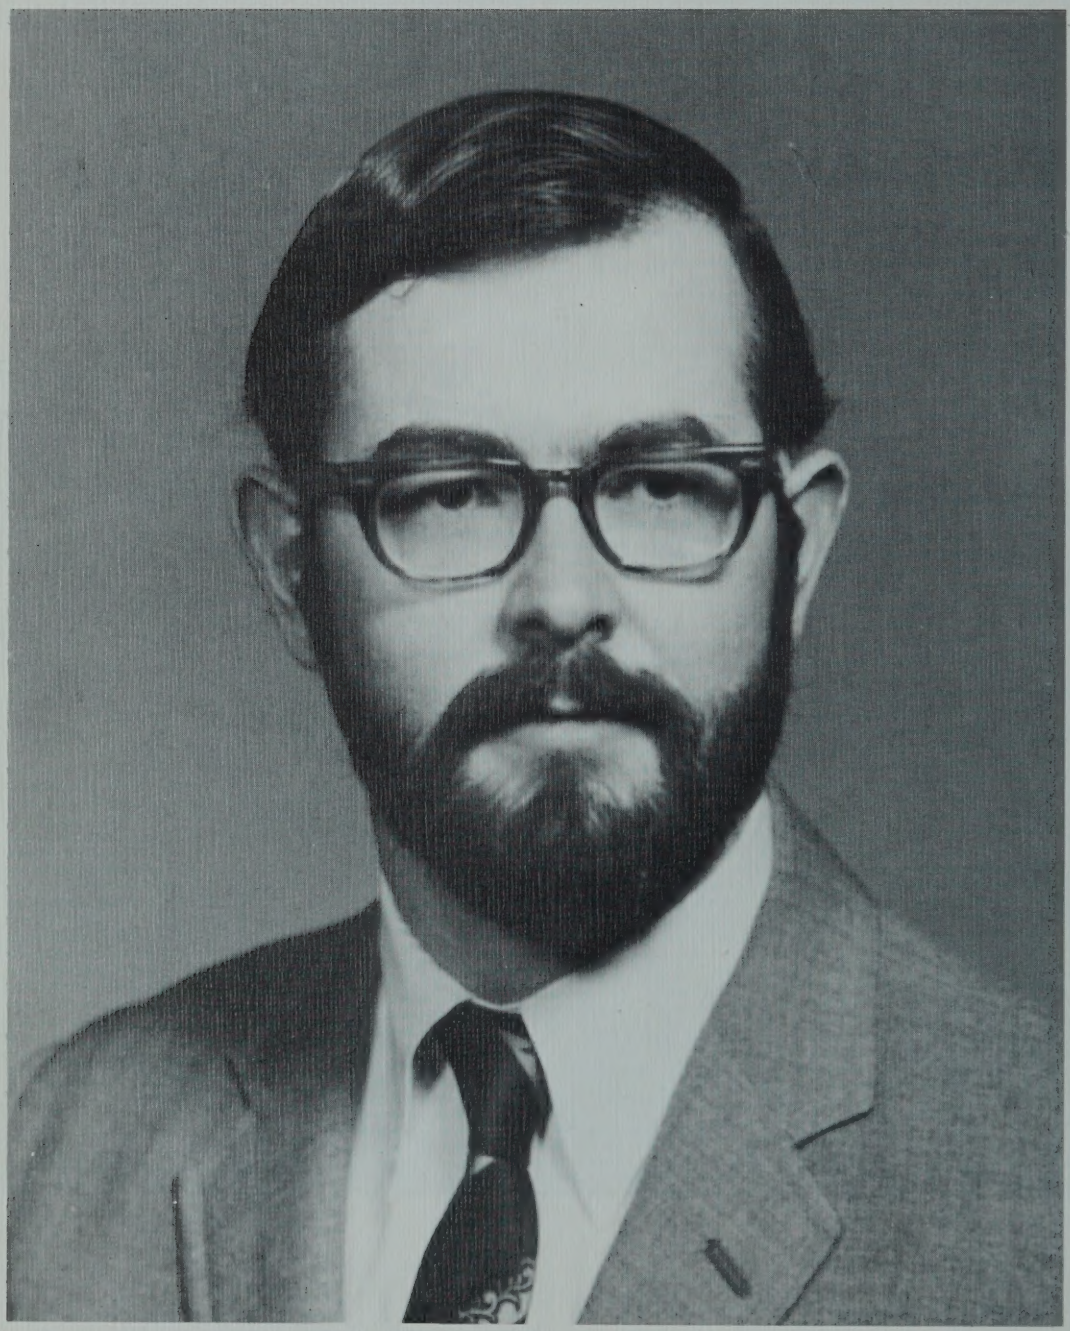
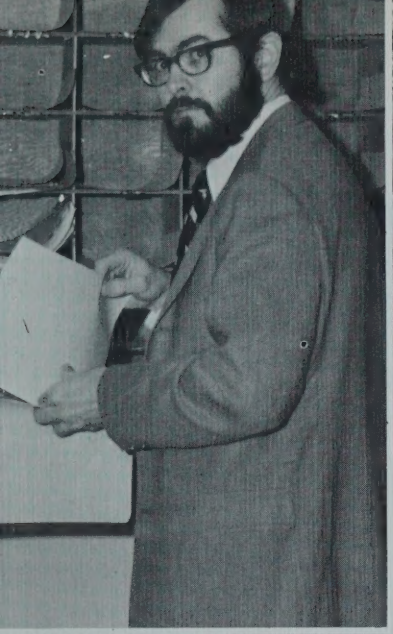
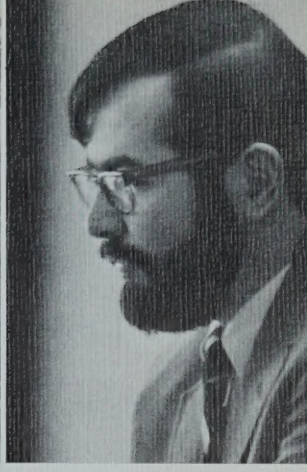
Dedication

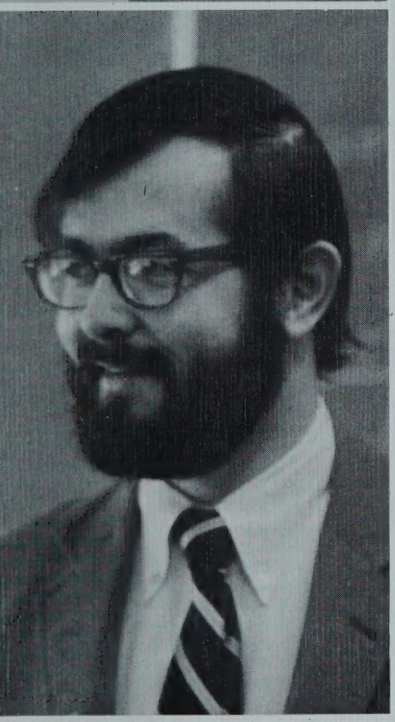


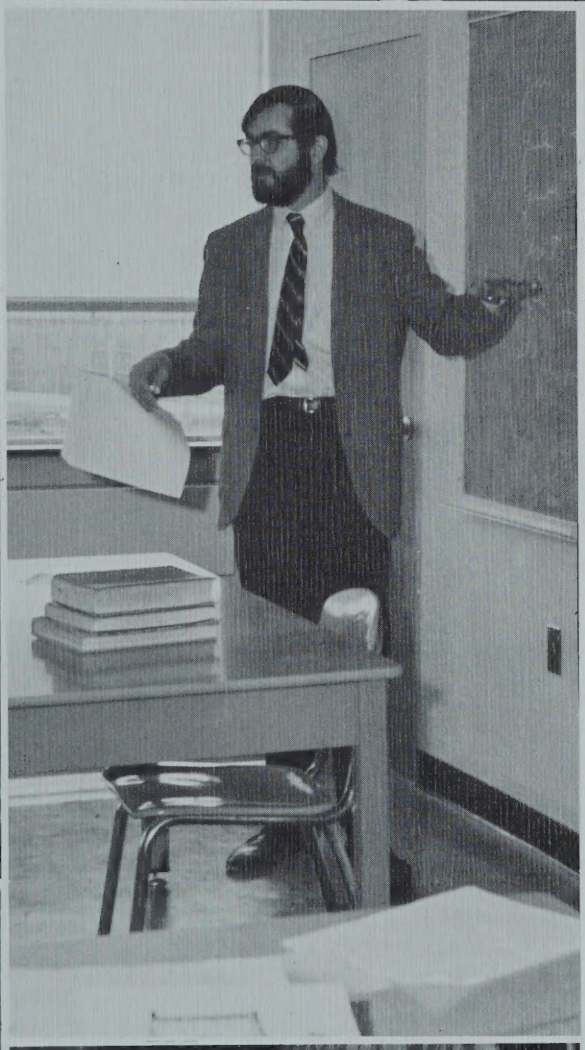
Georges Desrosiers

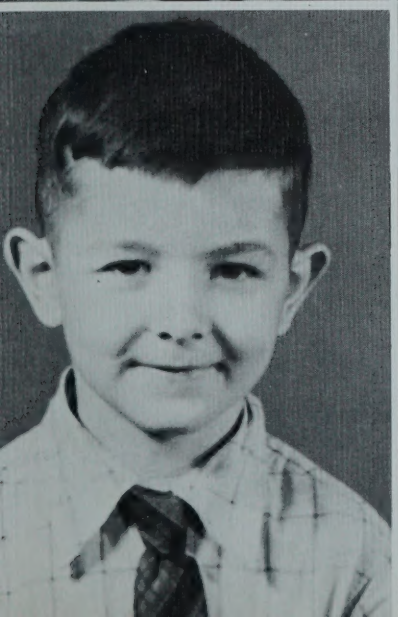
A real teacher does more than instruct; he teaches, he enlightens, and he inspires. He is always willing to help when he is needed, no matter how much work or personal time is involved. Throughout our four years of high school, Mr. Desrosiers has exhibited all these qualities. Therefore we, the class of 1971, dedicate our yearbook to him.

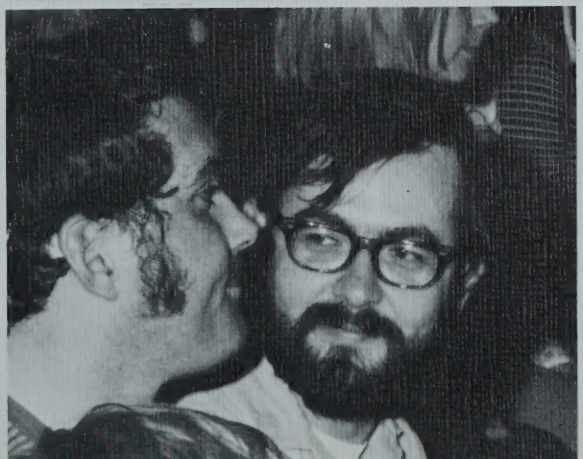








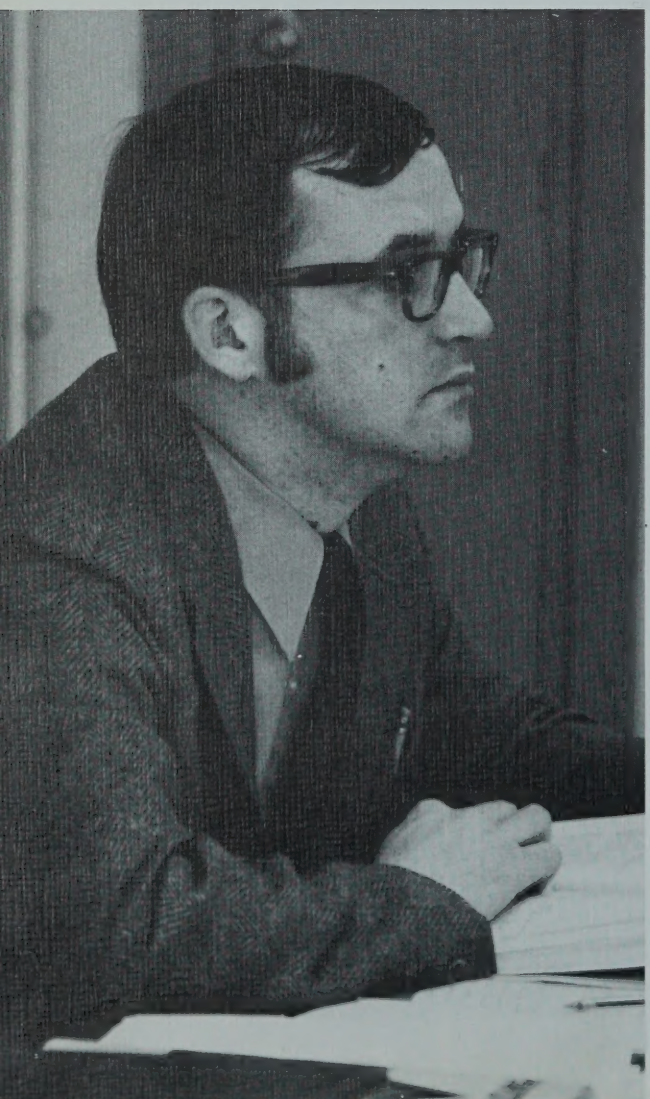


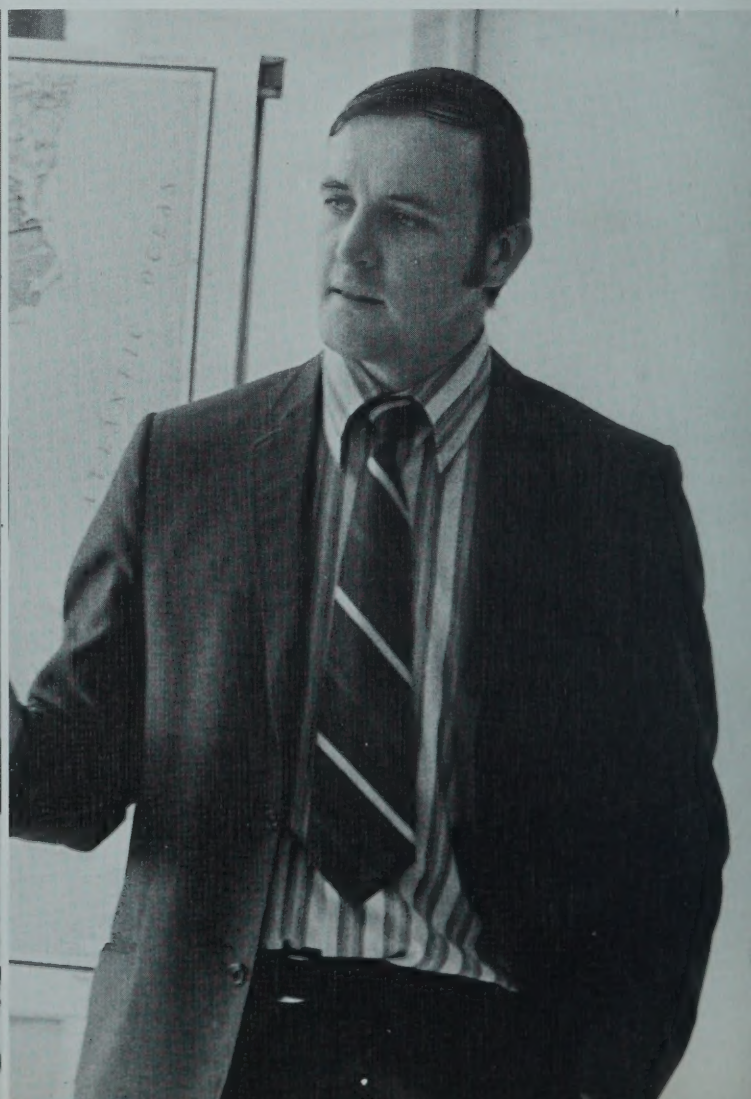


In Appreciation

Thomas Murray

The task of senior class advisor is not an easy one, but Mr. Murray undertook the task. We, the class of 1971, wish to sincerely thank him because he gave so generously of his time and energy.





The principal business of government is to further and promote human strivings.

Class Day Address of Welcome

Parents, Members of the Faculty, Fellow Students, and Friends:

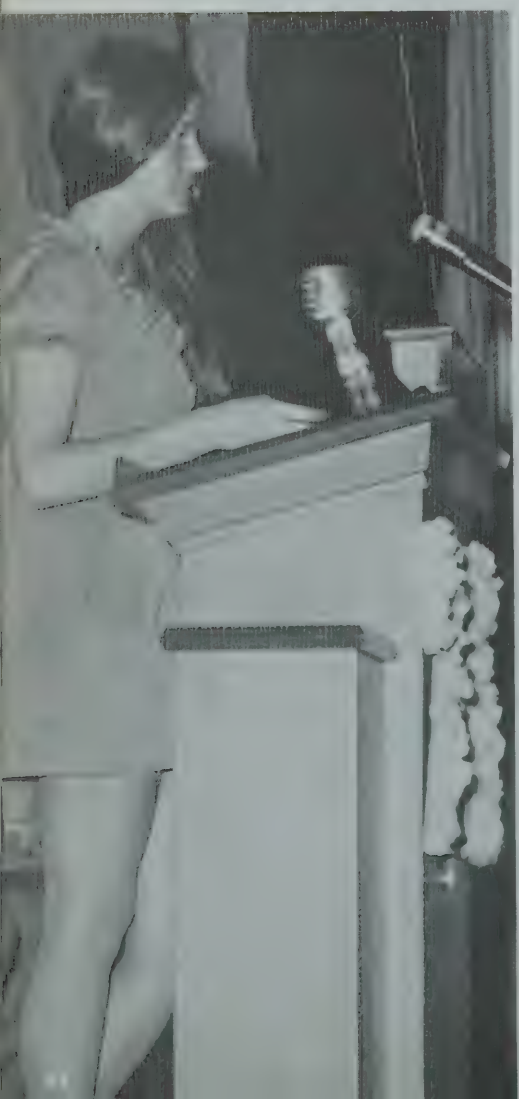
As President of the Senior Class of 1971, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to our Class Day exercises.

Today, June 7, 1971, marks the date that we shall step from our high school days into this trouble filled world. We are prepared to meet the challenges of this world, thanks to the guidance of our teachers and parents. To these people we give our sincere thanks.

We want to thank, too, our principal, Mr. Drake, who devoted his time and efforts to assure our class of every privilege possible.

We would like to thank our present class advisor, Mr. Thomas Murray, and the advisor of our junior year, Mr. Donald O'Leary, for their patience and encouragement throughout our last two years. And to the members of the Class of '71, I wish you luck in anything you may do.

Thank you,
Patricia Brady
President, Class of '71



Class History

As we sit here today, several days away from graduation, we find it hard to believe that four years have passed since we left the administration of Mr. O'Mara in junior high school and began our new role as freshmen under the strong hand of Mr. Shaw.

As freshmen, our first major task was the election of class officers. We chose Pat Brady President, Sue Rogers Vice-President, Cathy Laucis Secretary, Kathy Lemoine Treasurer, and Cheryl Eramo Class-Captain. Elected to the Student Council were Brian LaForte and Mark Baldwin.

Our first big chance to prove ourselves as valuable to the school came with the fall sports season. Many of the more athletic boys joined the football team under the direction of Mr. Matson. The girls' field hockey team was supported by Linda Brady, Vanessa McLaughlin, Ruth Trottier, and Jeanne Parella. Pat Brady and Cathy Burbank showed their school spirit by becoming cheerleaders.

Several clubs benefited from the participation of our class. Kathy Gallery, Ruth Trottier, Don Beasley, and Jim Moroney took on active membership in the Debating Club under Mr. Hayes. Congratulations went to Jim Moroney when he won a gold and a silver medal in the State Speech League competition.

Other members of our class joined the Dramatic Club, the French Club, and the Latin Club.

As freshmen, we underwent some trying experiences. I'm sure we all agree that our first midyears proved to be a rude awakening to high school methods that we will never forget. Nor will the Home Economics room ever be the same after the girls had their accidents with the garbage disposals and sewing machines. I'm sure many of the girls entering careers as housewives will find themselves indebted to Mrs. Dakin for her kindness and patience with us. At the same time, the boys were taking General Science with Mr. Cormier and surprisingly they all lived to tell about their experiments.

Soon spring arrived and we again displayed our athletic talents in spring sports. Members of the girls' team were Cheryl Eramo, Cathy Laucis, and Donna Gain. Our baseball team was supported by Mike Brady, Don Sadowski, Paul Paciello, Rick Surrete, and Bruce Woodward.

By June, we were anticipating our vacation. We even accepted the summer reading list without too much complaint.

September arrived quickly and we entered school under a new administration. Our new principal was Mr. Drake and the new superintendent was Mr. Elkins.

We entered school with much more confidence and could now laugh at the freshmen, forgetting that we too had taken those same shaky steps into Millbury High not so long before. Our return was immediately followed by the election of class officers. Brian LaForte was chosen President, Cindy Cristo Vice-President, Cathy Laucis Secretary, Kathy Lemoine Treasurer, and Kathy Smith Class Captain. Elected to the Student Council were Vanessa McLaughlin, Pat Brady, Leslie Elworthy and Mark Baldwin.

In football, continuing support to the team was given by Jeff Ducharme, Don Sadowski, Larry Tebo, Mike Aspinwall, Wally Carlson, Craig Fjellman, and Bill Burak. Barbara Anderson showed her enthusiasm by joining the cheerleaders.

During that year our football team was the greatest in the history of Millbury High. We earned the title of "Class C" champs. Mr. Bruno and the band deserves a sincere thanks for their constant support at all the games. Members of the band were Mike Aspinwall, Linda Donaghy, Pat Graham, Jean Gaudere, Pam VanOstrand, Carol Hegi, and Chris Doud who later went on to be selected for all-state orchestra. Thanks also went to the whole student body for their strong display of school spirit which was among our teams' greatest assets.

Some of the most memorable events of our sophomore year were the decisive Thanksgiving Day football game, and the National Honor Society's first slave auction. We ended the school year with a bang. Several hundred students rode their bicycles to school creating a traffic tie-up to the center of town. Students watched out the classroom windows as a member of that year's graduating class let the air out of tires and Mr. Roach chased him off the school grounds.

After summer vacation, we returned as upperclassmen and received our class rings. Linda Renauld and Cathy Laucis headed the ring committee and aquamarine was chosen for the stone.

Our football team that year again held the "Class C" Championship and we were once again undefeated. Outstanding members from our class were Larry Tebo and Bill Burak who went on to become co-captains in our senior year.

The basketball team also had a good season. Members of the girls' team were Pat Graham, Cathy Laucis, Leslie Elworthy, Debbie Russell, Sandy Anderson, and Sheila Cooper was named manager. Members of the boys' team were Don Sadowski, Jeff Ducharme, and Jim Dalton.

During our junior year, many members of our class were rewarded for diligent study. Sue Rogers, Pat Graham, Pam VanOstrand, Sue Lindstrom, and Michelle Cosky were named Horace Mann students. Twelve members of our class were inducted into the National Honor Society. We can recall, with mixed emotions, the controversy that arose over the "grafitti wall" used in the induction. Despite some mixed feelings, the ceremony was successful. We thank Mr. Chadwick for his devoted work towards the National Honor Society. In addition, we thank Mrs. Dupont for taking over at a time when her advisorship was truly needed and appreciated.

The Dramatic Club, under the supervision of Mr. Miles, had several members from our class, and James Moroney and Mark Baldwin had leading parts in the outstanding production of Thornton Wilder's play, Our Town.

Spring brought about "Roman Holiday," our junior prom held at White Cliffs, under the hard work of co-chairman Carol Chunis and Sheila Cooper. Cathy Laucis was chosen as Queen.

During the last few days of school, students began practicing for a new sport — squirt-gun fighting. Even some of the teachers participated. A common sight was students and teachers, squirt-guns in hand, engaged in battle.

Our three years of complaining were worthwhile, for this year, summer reading was discontinued. However Mr. Miles did manage to keep us busy during the year with Hamlet, Wuthering Heights, Steppenwolf, and many other literary works.

We also had a new duty this year — the publication of the Aftermath. Pat Graham was named editor, and a number of girls from our class spent long hours of hard work meeting the deadlines.

In class elections, Pat Brady became President, Vanessa McLaughlin Vice-President, Cathy Laucis Secretary, Lynn Bergstrom Treasurer, and Carol Fallstrom Class-Captain. Elected to the Student Council were Cathy Winiarski, Kathy Lemoine, Larry Tebo, Pat Graham, Vanessa McLaughlin, and Chris Donovan.

Mr. Murray accepted the task of being our class advisor. We thank him for his genuine concern for our class and our activities.

The Senior Class found itself short of money and we undertook some money-raising activities which consisted of a car wash, cake sale, tupperware party, slave auction, and sale of advertisements for the yearbook. The theme was "White Christmas" and Pat Graham was crowned Queen.

With the arrival of spring, the track team took shape. Members from our class were Mike Aspinwall, Dave Bodah, Bruce Johnson, and Larry Tebo. Larry won three medals at the League Track Meet.

On a cool day in March, the entire student body found itself outside shivering. This was the beginning of a series of bomb scares, one of the memorable events of our senior year.

In planning our class trip, we changed the traditional trip from Ted Hilton's to Ocean Beach Park. We look forward to this because it will be one of the last times we will be together as a class.

As we prepare to leave high school, acquaintances will be forgotten. We will meet new friends and form new relationships. However, we will never forget some of the life-time friendships formed during our four years at Millbury High.

Our senior year is over now. A few days from now at graduation, all ties with Millbury High will be broken, and we will enter the world somewhat richer for what Millbury High has given us.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Graduating Class of 1971, do declare this document to be our Last Will and Testament.

To Mr. Drake we leave tapped telephones for future bomb scares.
To Mr. Roach we leave a picture of our entire senior class.
To Mr. Murray we leave a book, "How To Interest Your Classes in One Easy Lesson."
To Mrs. McCarron we leave a letter-less typewriter.
To Mr. Matson we leave many winning ambitions in football and baseball.
To Mr. Desrosiers we leave many thanks for all his help and service given to us in our four years of high school; because of this we are dedicating our Aftermath to him.
To Mr. O'Leary we leave a chemistry class of all Irish girls.
To Miss Harrington we leave a Monday morning gym class that doesn't walk in their sleep.
To Miss Grogan we leave a bigger coffee pot.
To Mr. Miles we leave a book of manners.
To Mrs. Boberg we leave hopes of having Student Council meetings in a room instead of the hallway sitting on the floor; even though it was fun.
To Mr. Graham we leave a recording of his 80 "ah's" in seventh period Consumer Class.
To Mr. Evers we leave another year of being the best auctioneer at slave auctions.
To Mr. Capparelli we leave locks for his windows when the winter arrives.
To Mrs. Anderson we leave our many thanks for being so patient and kind to us Senior girls during the year.
To Joanne Born and Danny O'Brien we leave Pat Graham's headaches of the Aftermath.
To the Student Council we leave someone to take Christine Donavan's place as president.
To Lee Murphy we leave Gayle Ojerholm's title of "Best Dressed."
To Steve Ducharme we leave bus fare for going up to Assumption College.
To the field hockey team we leave Maura Kenary and Linda Fisher as co-captains.
To Pat Jordan we leave a pair of knee pads for her future use in basketball games.
To the girls' basketball team we leave Sandy Anderson's and Cathy Laucis's title of co-captains to Amy Taraskiewicz and Joan Bekier.
To the Chemistry Lab we leave better plumbing service.
To the football team we leave Peter McArdle and Mike Buffone as co-captains. May they have a successful season.
To Danny Chapman we leave Don Flynn's title "Most Witty."
To Timmy Lemoine we leave a stack of signed late slips.
To the Juniors we leave a better fund raising year.
To the Sophomore Class we leave the privilege of being able to go outside for lunch.
To the Freshman Class we leave a lot of patience for the next three years.

We, the Senior Class of Millbury Memorial High School, sincerely hope that the people mentioned in the above document are satisfied with their bequests. We trust and hope that there will be no contesting of doubtful privileges bequested to one in preference to another.

By the hand of their clerk,

Vanessa McLaughlin

Class Prophecy

It was June 4th 1981. A lot had happened in the ten years since I had left the small central New England town called Millbury. I wondered what the people whom I had graduated with would be like. Some had left Millbury although some had stayed and changed with the town.

And oh, how it had changed! In ten short years it had become one of the richest and most important towns in the world. There was talk of moving the capital from Washington to Millbury. After all, if it weren't for the gun factories in Millbury, the Civil War of 1976 could not have been fought; and the government of the town served as a shining example to all the world.

What started Millbury on this course to greatness happened just a few years after graduation. Marine General David Bodah had obtained an important position on the Chief's joint of staff with James Dalton, First Lieutenant. Between them they convinced the President that it was necessary to create a strategic command center to co-ordinate any radicals as Larry Boria and Joanne Saucier on the scene, forming the infamous dippie groups; there had been a threat of violence and all out civil war.

The President agreed to situate the command center in Millbury. This was because of the necessity of putting it in the most nonradical town that existed. Such influential right wing groups as the APPLES (apathetic people persuing less enforced sanitation), headed by James Beasley and Barbara Anderson, and PEARS (People ecologically aware of real swingers), headed by Jane Weidman and Sheila Beaucage, provoked the choosing of this site.

Soon plans had to be made to convert the town into a working military complex. Jeffrey Vigeant, master architect, was called in to aid in the designing. A military university was to be built to specially train all personnel. Michelle Cosky was appointed Dean in charge of keeping everyone non-radical. Pam VanOstrand was appointed assistant Dean in charge of keeping everyone radicalized. This was in order to keep a well balanced administration.

The professors of the school of military were very carefully chosen. Don Rynn was made a Professor of Advanced Trig. studies. Linda Donaghy was made a professor of advanced Greek studies. Donna Gain was put in charge of being in charge.

The entire team's construction proceeded on schedule. The buildings were erected on the former sights of the library, the high school, and Kaces's corner store. The town was of course reluctant to part with these historic buildings. After all, Kace's was a very popular place. Difficulty was encountered in the construction of the town when the question of how many religions would be allowed to build churches in the complex. At this time there were some 6,597,876,654 different religious organizations in the United States. For this, Archbishop Mary Ann Lemanski, was called in. Her husband, a renowned Lutheran, was a very good friend of the Pope's brother-in-law. This was considered one of the most ecumenical and sensible moves made by Don Beesley, the famous historian, when he was to analyze the situation in years to come.

Various officials were appointed to important posts in the government. Miss Virginia Lind was appointed skyscraper superintendent. Cindy Cristo was appointed assistant mayor in charge of keeping an eye on the mayor. Mike Aspinwall had been appointed mayor by the former town clerk, Kenny Lowe, who had been involved in a tremendous power struggle in Millbury politics at the end of 1972 political season.

Many distinguished personalities were there on opening day. Representatives from all around the world came to view the new complex. Heading up the opening day committee was Kevin Mahan. His staff included Pam Pelletier, chairwoman of chairs, Sandra Riani, chairwoman of crepe paper, and Linda Renauld, chairwoman of seating arrangements, and Sheila Queenan in charge of the guest list.

Security was handled by Bruce Vigeant. Special precautions had to be taken since the President of East Pakistan would be attending. Accompanying him would be Jeanne Parella who was in charge of his "little black bag." Few people knew what the little black bag was or what it was used for. In case of nuclear attack, its mechanisms could trigger a nuclear retaliation by the powerful atomic forces of East Pakistan. Only three people knew the combination to the bag's locks. One was the President himself, the second was the Presidential Assistant in charge of black bags, Ruth Trottier, and the third was so important that no one even knew who he was (although I always had a sneaky suspicion that it was Thomas Cournoyer).

Sheila Cooper was to chair the Arrangements Committee. In charge of all timing was famous broadway playwright, Tony Andreoli. In charge of all stage arrangements was Mike Brady, and in charge of seeing that everyone knew what they were in charge of was Sue Lindstrom. John Warren and David Wassell were made honorary honor guards in honor of all honorable people at the event. Cathy Winiarski, Jeanne Groth, and Debra Russell were made official ushers and Chris Donovan was made honorary marshall of the parade to be held before the ceremonies. The parade was in honor of Rande Muscatell, former Governor of California. Muscatell had served for two years as Governor of California before he turned to making movies. He made three movies altogether. His most famous, "A Drop of Rain," was made in 1974 at Ojerholm Studios in Burbank. His movie was chosen personally by Gayle Ojerholm, director of the studio. The Director, Joanne Hervieux, was well-known for her name in the credits. People marvelled at the way the studios spelled it correctly on each picture.

The day of the opening ceremonies had finally arrived. The keynote speaker was Cathy Laucis, who with her trusty assistants, James Lacouture, Deb Kuczka, and Chester Hanratty had conducted an expedition into the fierce jungles of deepest Africa only a few years before. She was to speak on the topic "The Relationship of the Kangaroo to the Tropics."

After this highly interesting talk, the ceremonies were resumed by Town Crier, Kathy Lemoine. After waking everyone up with a loud bell, she proceeded to introduce the next speaker, the U.S. Representative from Sweden, Anita Lundberg.

No sooner had Anita risen to speak, when a group of young radicals pounced upon the stage and began pelting the dignitaries with toasted marshmallows. Among the marshmallow marauders were Bob Marchand, Bruce Johnson, and Albert West. Various attempts at quelling the rioting crowd were made by several members of the assembly. Sister Joy Huchowski began to scream in a loud voice. No one was ever quite sure what she was screaming, but it didn't work anyway. Captain Ray Donisvitch of the Millbury Police Department was seen running toward the stage, and Donald Ballard of the Fire Department was seen running from the stage.

Soon the President was alerted that the radicals had infiltrated the Millbury Compound.

He called together his closest advisors in an emergency meeting at the Northern White House. Alan Belinskas, Presidential Advisor, Bryan Anderson, Special Assistant to the President, and Leonard Johnson, White House janitor were called into the Conference Room. After Johnson finished polishing the table, the others proceeded to discuss the situation.

There was always the possibility that underworld boss Brian LaForte had plotted the whole escapade. LaForte, along with the rest of his gang, Billy Burak, Mark Baldwin, and Bruce Woodward, had pulled off the famous Catherwood Case. This case a few years before had involved the kidnapping of famous heiress Debby Catherwood. Such famous police personalities as Denise Crewe and Sgt. Nelson Kiesiner of the Miami Police Department were involved. This idea, however, was discarded since LaForte's activities had been seriously hampered in recent years by Senator Bill Brown's investigation into the television industry. It seemed that LaForte had used some of the richest men in the country, T.V. repairmen Peter Caruso and Wally Carlson, to set up a plot where he could steal all of the T.V. sets in the country. After he had stolen them, he would sell them at a highly inflated price. After Senator Brown had uncovered the movement, Mike Berg, President of NBC News, made one of the most moving statements of his career . . . "No comment."

The decision was made to call in the National Guard. The Guard unit that was to be used was headed by Women's Lib advocate Pat Goulding. Goulding had become a Sergeant in two months. This, of course, had nothing to do with the fact that she was related to the Marine's top General who was even bigger than Bodah. The guard soon stormed the complex. In the mass arrests taking place afterwards, Pat Brady, a correspondent for Station STOP, was mistakenly arrested. She was later released through the aid of the expert trial lawyer Doris Watts.

After the complex was cleared of demonstrators, the ceremonies were held again. This time the ceremonies were assuredly undisturbed with the help of Marshall Jeff Ducharme and Larry Tebo. Chris Doud performed a rousing rendition of "Millbury, the Town of My Youth," and Carol Chunis concluded the ceremonies with a religious invocation from Love Story.

As I approached the runway to arrive in Millbury, I noticed the memorial which was built by Craig Fjellman, the renowned sculptor. It was in the shape of a huge turkey cutlet with gravy dripping down the sides. The inscription at the bottom of the monument was written by Peter Capistron. It said "TO EAT OR NOT TO EAT; THAT IS THE QUESTION." Pat Warren, Broadway playwright later turned that quote into an award-winning play. It was about a small pig who was killed and turned into pork sausage. It was called Hamlet. Reviewer Joyce Campbell gave it reviews.

There was another monument just over the hill from the airport. It was in the shape of a large grange. The designer was Roger Rene of Rene Plastics. It was done after the Civil War. WHAT? You don't know about the Civil War? Well . . . let me tell you about it.

You see . . . a few years after the Millbury Military Complex was built (it was called M & M's then), Master Sgt. Donald Sadowski was appointed head of the installation. It was a security wonder of which no one could go in or out.

The security systems were designed by Tom Ryder.

The night of the attack will go down in U.S. history as one of the times when this nation stood most divided. At that time the population was exactly 500 million people. This figure was arrived at by the Stockhaus Amendment to the Taft Act. Representative Betty Taft had proposed unlimited immigration policies. Representative Stockhaus amended the bill to call for an immigration policy to stop at 500 million. Of course there was the problem of the rising birth rate which was easily taken care of. Every person born in the U.S. was immediately shipped to Canada. This eliminated the threats of overpopulation.

On the night of the attack all seemed well. Suzanne Rogers, flag engineer for the security compound, was just lowering the flag when the chief officer Paul Paciello spotted 2.5 million people trying to sneak up on the back door of the compound. Security Chief Phil Pepin's brilliant mind soon went to work as he gave orders that the lock on the door be checked. His assistant Paul Stearns issued thoughts as to whether or not the door was strong enough to hold back 2.5 million people. Pepin answered in a Charlton Heston-like voice that a self-destructive device had been installed to blow up the door if it was opened. This put Stearns' mind at rest.

The revolutionary group was headed by one of the master-minded revolutionaries of the century, Douglas Rozell. He, along with the devious Keith Griffin, plotted to have the first one million people stand on each other's shoulders and form a long pole. All one million people would then simultaneously fall forward onto the ground. After being knocked unconscious by the fall, they would be picked up by the remaining 1.5 million people and be used as a battering ram.

Little did the radicals know that they were being watched.

After Pepin saw how serious the situation was, he decided to let them in. His plan was ingenious. He would let the 2.5 million people in and lock the doors only after he and his staff had left. That way he would have them all safely tucked away in the complex until he had a chance to call the police. His plan worked until his extra key was discovered by one of the radicals, Peggy Gallagher. She soon unlocked the door and the radicals escaped.

As I mentioned earlier the peace conference to settle the conflict was held in Millbury. The method of reconciliation devised by Diplomat Kathy Gallery was ingenious. The five top leaders of both sides would be locked in the Military Complex until a decision was reached. If they wanted to eat, they would have to reach a decision first. Within 15 minutes Delegates Mike Lizotte, Deborah MacLean, Kathy Smith, and Bob Mikulski of the radical side and Cindy Hoyt, Glenn Johnson, and Linda Grindley of the other side had reached a decision.

A compromise government in Washington was set up. It was decided that the U.S. would be run on a town meeting form of government. The new Constitution was written by Jeanne Gaudere. The first signer of the new Constitution was radical Nancy Anderson so that Sharon Hamilton could read it without her spectacles. At that time Sharon was the manufacturer of the world's best spectacles.

The new government was headed by Duck Rainville and Mark Palin as the town clerk and vice-town clerk. On the board of Selectmen were Stephen Miller, Carol Hegi, and Leo Loponen. The Elm-Beetle Inspector of the new national government was Pat Graham, a renowned elm-beetle expert. Wayne McClintock was named the new national fire engineer in charge of driving the new national fire engine, and Joyce Loader was appointed the new national police chief in charge of policing the chiefs.

As the plane was about to enter the historic town, stewardess Candice Gosselin reminded all passengers that they must fasten their seat belts, because Pilot Eileen McArdle and Co-Pilot Vanessa McLaughlin were not too good at landing. After we had landed and the fire was out, the President of Millbury, Linda Brady, came to the foot of the plane. The red carpet was rolled out and Herald reporters Cheryl Blondin, Carol Fallstrom, and Lynn Bergstrom met me at the door of the plane.

Oh, I've forgotten to tell you who I am. I'm the administrative assistant to the new town clerk of the U.S., Paula Miller. Clerk Miller was almost defeated in the election by her opponent, Glenn Miller, because of a new law that states only the last name of the candidate may appear on the ballot. The bodyguards are coming onto the plane now. There's Sue Wahlstrom with CIA Director Donna Sabourin. Merideth Vielle, the famous police artist is here now with Sandra Anderson and Herbert Mello of the Millbury FBI. Miller's secretary Keith Orrell is leaving and I have to leave too. It's been nice talking. Here comes Elaine Paille . . . What? To the home?? Do I have to??? Well . . . I must go back to the home now, they only let me out a little while at a time. Good-bye.

Prophecy

On my flight home from the Bahamas, the newscaster reported, "The new Pope has just been elected." Since everyone aboard was eager to learn his identity, we all listened closely. As the new prelate addressed his people, I thought the voice was familiar. Then I heard someone address him as Pope James. Yes, my former classmate, James Moroney, who had entered the priesthood after graduating from M.H.S. had achieved the highest honor in his church.

Friendship in Focus

"During the past twelve years, I have formed many valuable friendships. I am referring not only to those bonds with my fellow students, but also to those with teachers, counselors, and administrators. I have shared many wonderful adventures with these people, and because each occasion had its own special charm I cherish every memory and draw joy from the thought of the relationship. Each person has given me a great deal, not of what he has, but of what he is."

Patricia Ann Graham

New Priorities in Education

"High schools should stop pushing their students on to college. Everyone doesn't need or have the ability to go to college. There are many good-paying, interesting jobs which don't require a college education. When trying to build a more beneficial school system, educators should remember what the word education means. It comes from the Latin ex duco — to lead out. To lead out of us the best that is in us; to give us pride in our jobs; and to give us confidence that with hard work we will move FORWARD."

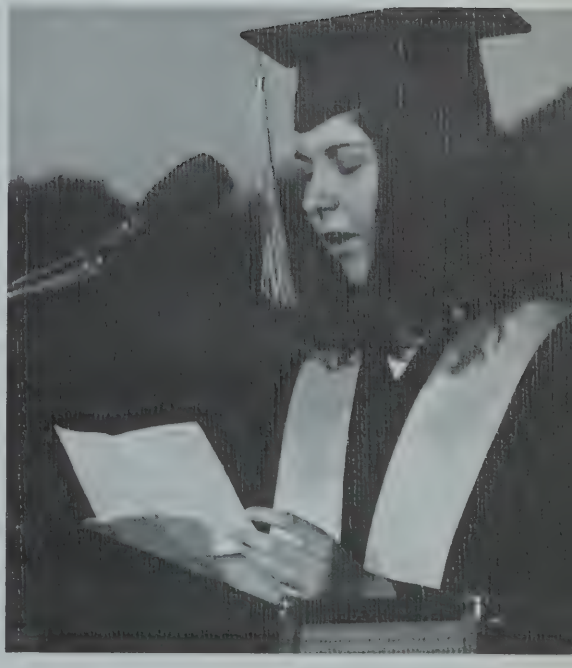
Pamela Jane VanOstrand

The Rights and Responsibilities of Today's Youth

"People speak of the so-called generation gap. This separation between youth and adults is basically a lack of communication. The youth of today only think of the immediate situation and do not foresee future results. The adults do not listen to the ideas nor understand the feelings of the youth. This generation gap must be bridged to have a coherent society. It is the responsibility of both the youth and the adults to try to cooperate."

Susan Marie Lindstrom

The Importance of a Good Education



It is very important to have a good education in today's society, although many kids don't realize it. They also do not realize that education is only what you put into it.
